

How hard could it be to coach a kids rec league baseball team in the small town of Stonefield? Matt was about to find out. When Matt's buddy asked for help coaching the team, it sounded like fun. No pressure. Then his friend was unexpectedly transferred out of town, and the team now belonged to Matt. Matt was unaware of the challenges waiting for him. The start was rough. The kids were lost. The parents were swarming. When John, an old coach, stopped by the ball field, he could clearly see Matt was in trouble. A chance encounter brought them together, creating the opportunity for John to teach Matt timeless methods great coaches, and leaders of all types, use to set their teams up for success.
