

This book presents Vietnam veterans' 1970 testimony about their personal participation in what they describe as everyday atrocities in the war. Excerpts: "It is our hope that the American people will come to realize that war crimes in Vietnam are not isolated, aberrant acts but the inevitable result of a policy which in its direction of waging war against the civilians, Vietnamese civilians, is in itself immoral and criminal." "Robert Master: 'Gooks were gooks and you killed them. That's what they were for. So we did it. It didn't really bother me at the time. It didn't bother me until I started thinking what really happened.'" Phil Wigenbach
