A man in his time most god-His chalie, upright, and virtuous, and such a one as that place was not possessed of the like in many currents of years. In his life he was most virtuous and godlie; in matters of council most sound and perfect; in justice most upright and tincorrupted; in hospitalitie very bountie and liberal; in manners and conversation most courteous and gentle; 1 Irish Parliaments, liy the Rijrht Hon. Jann-s Whiteside, pt. i. p. 47. 3 MasonH History of St. Patrick, p. 171. CHAP, faithful to his Prince, firm to his friend, and courteous to XVIII, . all men; and as was his life, so was his death, who a little time before the same called his household, and gave them such godlie instructions as to their callings appertained; Exhorta-then he set his private things in order, and he spent all tion to his 1111-1. household, the tune that he had m praiers and exhortations. At last, feeling a declination towards, he appointed a general communion to be had of his household and friends in his chamber, unto which all the Council came and were partakers; and then, these actions finished, he gave a Last ad-most godlie exhortation to the Council, persuading them Council. to be zealous and virtuous in Gods true religion; then to be mindful of their duties to her Majesty; and lastly, remembering their callings and estate, and the great charge of the Government laid upon them, and committed unto them, that they would be valiant, careful, and studious to perform the same, as might be to the glorie of God, honor to the Queen, and benefit to the whole realme; which points he handled so godlie, learnedly, and effectually, that he made their tears to trill and their hearts to be heavy. This done, he bade them farewell, and not long...
