

In "Win by Leading," author and leadership professional Kim Groshek reveals the tools and steps that any organization can implement to boost the results of its members. Groshek believes passionately that everyone has leadership ability, and that groups and organizations of any kind can tap into the potential of their members by implementing her Leadership Organization model. In easy-to-follow dialogue, Groshek defines the Leadership Organization model and its value, outlining a framework of leadership training and actionable steps that all groups can use for immediate results. Different leadership models are examined, and teams are guided expertly through the process of identifying core competencies and establishing goals. Groshek also shares her own struggles with assuming and using leadership effectively, and the challenges she encountered along the way. "I was so focused on looking at the future, I didn't even consider what someone was trying to teach me," she said. "Because I wasn't in the moment, listening wholeheartedly, I missed the teaching moment." "Win by Leading" is a series of teaching moments that encourage groups to unlock the potential of each member, keeping an open mind as they work toward creating their own vibrant Leadership Organization.
